LONG EXPECTED RETALI-ATORY MEASURE IS TAKEN TODAY.

SITUATION IN POLAND

Mystery Surrounds Von Hinden-burg's Operations Between Niemen and Vistula—

Fighting in Austria

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, March 15.—The British ordering council decreeing retaliatory measures on the part of the government to meet the declaration of the Germans that the waters surrounding the United Kingdom are a military area, was made public today.
The British government plans, in co-operation with its allies, of cutting off trade to and from Germany was announced today. It contains drastic provisions not only for holding up ships to and from German ports but for confiscation of goods of German origin or destination which are shipped from neutral ports.

Developments in Poland.—
London, March 15.—Mystery envelops the progress of Von Hinden-burg's latest advance into Poland but it is the opinion of British observers that the vast forces along the line from the Niemen to Vistula cannot maintain longer be kept from decisive contact unless the direction of the German offensive undergoes a radical change.

At the present time the meager information coming through of the operations in the eastern arena, indicates that the Germans have been successful in the forest of Augustow, whence the Russians have fallen back under the guns of Grodnow. Further to the south, in the Mlawa region, the German advance has been stayed and the Russians are initiating an advance on the northern bank of the Vistula in direction of Plock. So far as the Germans are concerned, however, all these movements may be abandoned and central Poland again become the scene of determined attacks on Warsaw.

In the Carpathians.—
In the Carpathians the Russians apparently are abandoning their defensive attitude, for they are making decisive counter attacks on the Austrians with greatest success, according to official announcement from Petrograd.

The region of the principal Russian offensive is near Lupa pass. Here the Russians claim heavy capture of prisoners and guns. On the other hand Vienna reports the failure of Russian counter attacks, and that many Russian prisoners as result of bitter night fighting in the Carpathians.

Last night's Paris official announcement said the British success at Yeuve Chabonne was more substantial than had been reported; that the French were making themselves secure in new trenches in the Champagne country and that aerial bombardment of West End had been effective.

May Relieve Przemyśl.— Petrograd, March 15.—Austrian forces supported by large German contingents are again making a determined effort to relieve the Przemysl fortress in Galicia, besieged by the Russians since the early months of the war.

Having failed in their movement in East Galicia, near Stanislaw, when they hoped to strike northwest in direction of Przemyśl, and having transferred the center of their operations thence to the left, they are now attempting to take a direct route from Czok pass to the north.

Dardanelles Fighting.—
Paris, March 15.—The Athens correspondent of the Havas Agency said that not a single French sailor had been struck during the fighting in the Dardanelles. The French hospital ship Canada has arrived at Athens with sixty convalescents aboard, and after provisioning will leave for the Dardanelles.

A pledge to the allies that Greece
would place at their disposal 5,000 men for the Dardanelles expedition had been made to the chancelleries of the triple entente by former premier Venizelos on March 4, says the Petit Parisien.

SUBWAY FIRE CAUSES
PANIC IN NEW YORKTraffic Tied Up and Hotel Guests
Driven From Rooms by Smoke
Subway Under Construction.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, March 15.—Fire early today in the new subway under construction on Seventh Avenue, between 42nd and 45th streets, filled the streets with smoke, tied up traffic on a portion of the old Broadway subway and some of the adjacent streets, and drove hundreds of guests from hotels clustering about Times Square. The fire was attributed to a short circuit, said to have been caused by a workman who drove his drill into a large power cable. The firemen tore up the timbers over the subway, cut and attacked the smoldering wires with sand.

JOHN W. TIPNEY IS CALLED BY DEATHOld Janesville Resident and Paperhanger Expires at His Home This Morning at Ten O'clock.After an illness for four months,
due to a complication of diseases, John W. Tipney, an old resident of this city, expired this morning at ten o'clock at his home, 417 Cornelia street. Mr. Tipney was a former paper-hanger and lived with his wife and sons of this city, and at one time held a position with the No. 2 Hose company, a part of the old Janesville fire department. He also held a position at the old Hyatt House here.

He was born August 15, 1842 in England, and came to Janesville when about ten years old. He was united in marriage in November, 1897, to Miss Anna Kolden, whose three sons
he has, with a cousin and family, James Plumb, at Johnston Center.

He was a faithful member of the Trinity Episcopal church of this city, where the funeral services will be held Wednesday morning at ten thirty o'clock. Rev. Father Henry Willmann officiating. The pallbearers will be:
C. W. Wisch, S. B. Hall, J. G. Gregory, Henry Richards, William Brown and George Richards. Burial will be made in Oak Hill cemetery.

TWO BELOIT PAPERS
WERE MERGED TODAYDaily News Purchases The Free Press and Latter Publication Suspends With Today's Issue.

Founded as a weekly in 1848 and a daily in 1879, the Beloit Free Press
today suspended publication, its equipment and good will having been purchased by the Beloit Daily News, and it will be merged with that publication. This is along the same line as the consolidation of other papers the size of Beloit, where it has been found that two newspapers could not exist,
the stronger forcing the smaller to the wall ultimately. The Free Press has long been known as a conservative Republican paper and for years was owned and published by the late Chamberlain; later it passed through troublesome times, which culminated in its purchase by the Daily News and its passing out of existence.

GERMAN AND TURKISH OFFICERS OF THE TURKISH FLEET

Left to right: Enver Bey, Turkish commander of the naval staff; Captain Busse (German); Admiral Seouchon (German); commander of the Turkish fleet; Captain Buechsel (German); Flag Lieutenant Wichelhausen (German); Turkish Flag Lieutenant Hakkio.

That the Turkish fleet is commanded and officered by the Germans has been a charge often made but rarely substantiated. This picture, taken on board one of the Turkish battleships only a short while before the allied fleet began the bombardment of the Dardanelles, gives definite proof of the contention. German officers have practically taken entire command of all the Turkish war vessels and also of the fortifications.

Machine.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

San Francisco, Calif., March 15.— Lincoln Beachey, America's foremost and most daring aviator, looped the loop once too often, for on Sunday, Beachey was killed when his monoplane plunged from an altitude of two thousand feet into San Francisco bay.
Beachey was completing his second flight of the day when the accident occurred. For the first time he attempted to perform the somersaults in a monoplane and was about to make a perpendicular drop when the wings of the machine collapsed. For several hundred feet he dropped head on but in checking the flight the wings crumbled and the machine, whirling like a wounded bird, plunged down into the water. Beachey was strapped to the seat and his body was found by divers in the ruins of the aeroplane forty feet from the surface.
An immense crowd witnessed this tragedy and death of the most daring aviator of the present day.

tertained Saturday afternoon for

GARRANZA PROMISES TO HALT BLOCKADE OF YUCATAN PORTAGREES NOT TO INTERFERE WITH TRADE FOLLOWING URGENT APPEAL OF UNITED STATES.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, March 15.—General Carranza has promised to halt the blockade of the port of Progreso on the Gulf of Mexico, following an urgent appeal of the United States.
The Mexican gunboat Zaragosa has been called off and two American ships laden with supplies for the United States were cleared Saturday without interference.

The United States has served notice on Carranza that the port through which nearly all the grain used in making harvesting twine for this country is obtained, must be kept open and was prepared to back up its demand with the cruiser Des Moines, now at the port.

It became known for the first time
today that last week a Mexican gun-boat had stopped one American ship with a shot across her bow, and had held up another and interfered with British shipping.

Washington, March 15.—Possibility of interference with American commerce at Progreso, Mexico, as a result of the closing by General Carranza of that port to foreign trade, along with reports of a condition of anarchy at Manzanillo, a port on the Pacific side of Mexico, was causing some anxiety here today. On the other hand, officials were encouraged over reports of improvement of conditions in Mexico City.

Saw Gunboat Disaster.
New York, March 15.—An eye witness story of the destruction of the Mexican gunboat, Progreso, in the harbor at Progreso, Mexico, Feb. 23, was brought to New York today by Captain W. J. Ryan and nine members of the crew of the Ward Line tug, which has been doing lightering work in Mexican ports for several years. According to Capt. Ryan, the Progreso was blown up by what her officers supposed was a barrel of butter just brought aboard.

"We were lying at anchor half a mile from the gunboat at the time," said Capt. Ryan.

Capt. Ryan said, "We were looking at the gunboat at the time of the explosion. As soon as we heard the report and saw the Progreso was in distress, we headed for her and took off some of her crew. Meanwhile the Progreso's officers tried to steer her into the shallows. They didn't make much headway, however, for she sank as a result of the explosion. Twenty men who were standing forward around the barrel of butter were killed by the explosion and at least that many more were injured. A great hole was torn in the boat's bottom."

"The Morow Castle, a Ward liner, was in port, and after taking aboard
the survivors, weighed anchor at once and started for Vera Cruz. The Yasas-Yucatan troops in control of the port, commanded my tug,
and after putting aboard 15 or 20
men armed with rifles, set out in pursuit of the Morow Castle. When they caught up with her they called upon her to stop, but she disregarded the order and kept on her way. The tug then returned to port."

The Morow Castle flies the American flag.
Capt. Ryan, the commander of the Progreso, had been warned that feeling in Yucatan was high against the Carranza government, which he represented. When the Progreso entered the harbor, Capt. Ryan said, she was ordered by the Yucatan troops to leave. Instead her captain asked permission to take on supplies. This was given with the result that the gunboat was blown up by an infernal machine hidden in the supplies.

Ryan Confirms Report.
The report that Yucatan had asserted its independence of all present governments in Mexico was confirmed by Capt. Ryan. He said that Yucatan now had 40,000 men under arms to maintain her independence. Some of the alleged plans of the Yucatan government, he said, were unfolded to him by a party of forty, including several influential residents of Yucatan transported March 20 from Pro-greso to Havana by the Auxilier.

"I was told by some of the party," Capt. Ryan said, "that a movement was being made in Yucatan to recognize the United States to recognize Yucatan's independence. Another plan was to establish a protectorate over Yucatan somewhat similar to that exercised over Porto Rico. If this could be done without depriving the state of its sovereignty."

Ship Without a Flag.
When the Auxilier reached Havana Capt. Ryan said that he had invited the crew to the ship's papers, and lowered the Mexican flag, which flew over the vessel. Although Capt. Ryan and the crew were not allowed to leave the vessel, they thought it best to do so.

REMOVE DEAD CARP
FROM THE RACE WAYTwo Wagon Loads of Fish Taken
From Front of Water Gates
At Blodgett Milling Company.

Two huge wagon loads of dead carp were taken from the raceway by street employees under the direction of Commissioner P. J. Goodman Saturday afternoon. By noon all the carps which were taken to the city limits,
where they were taken to a farm near the city limits, where they will be buried.

The carp had congregated in vast numbers against the gate guards of the Blodgett Milling company, and thousands were taken from the water during the afternoon. It showed signs of the death to be due to poisonous gases, and many of them
weighed fifteen and twenty pounds.
After laying on the shore for about an hour the fish gave off a stench which showed that the action by the commission was just in time to prevent a bad condition around the raceway.

The plan is before the city council with the support of City Service Director, Silvio. If successful the bureau will consist of a com-

make it their business to ascertain why "Mrs. Smith tried to get Mrs.
Jones out of her house all the time,"
why "the line was busy when it wasn't," why "the operator wouldn't give Mr. Smith's nickel back when he didn't get his party and the innumerable other "whys" that occur every day. But the city will not make it a point to criticize the telephone company all of the time. The municipal directors will probe "Mr.
Jones' subscription" too, and find out just who it is that was wrong,
if so, why.

ARGUES IMPORTANT
WISCONSIN CASESDeputy Attorney General Drew Defends Upper Berth Law In Supreme Court.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., March 15.—Two important cases affecting legislation in Wisconsin were argued in the United States supreme court last week, and another will probably be argued tomorrow. Last week Deputy Attorney General Walter Drew appeared for the state in the upper berth law case and in the Burlington case requiring the stopping of two trains each day, if trains are run to that extent, at villages of 250 inhabitants.

The so-called upper berth law was placed on the statute books at the behest of Assemblyman Nye, a republican. The original law was declared unconstitutional by the state supreme court, but a second bill by Nye, enacted into law, was sustained and the railroads then carried the case to the United States supreme court. The law applies only to intrastate traffic.
This law provides that whenever a person shall engage lower berth in a sleeping car the upper berth in the same section if unoccupied shall remain closed. The railroads contend that this law is confiscatory, and that the state is in fact a regulation of interstate commerce. The state asks that the law be sustained as a public health measure.

The Burlington case concerns an order of the state railroad commission,
pursuant to an act of the legislature,
compelling all railroads in the state to stop two trains in each direction
daily at every town of 250 population in the village of Cochrane, which is in excess of 250 and ordered the railroad to obey the mandate of the legislature. Both the circuit court of Dane county and the supreme court of Wisconsin sustained the order of the railroad commission. This is a "test" case to determine the validity of the law. It will also decide whether the state commission has the power to stop an interstate train at one of these villages, which comes within the scope of the law.

It is expected that sometime later this week that the United States supreme court will hear arguments in the Milwaukee lower fare case. One of the principal points involved in this litigation is the right of a state commission to reduce a fare below the amount fixed in the franchise.

GREEN BAY PRELATE
IS DEAD IN CHICAGOBishop Fox Succumbs at Alexian Hospital Sunday Night Following Operation Two Weeks.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, March 15.—Bishop Fox of the Catholic diocese of Green Bay, Wisconsin, who was taken to the Alexian Brothers' Hospital March 1,
for a serious operation, died late yesterday.

Friends of Bishop Fox had been encouraged by the great improvement shown in his condition after the operation, and last week he was believed to be on the verge of recovery. His physicians yesterday detected distressing conditions, and his heart action was found to be weaker. Several hours services will be held in Green Bay, where the body will be taken tomorrow.

Funeral Arrangements.—
Green Bay, March 15.—The body of Bishop Joseph J. Fox will arrive here at 7:15 tomorrow night, over the Northwestern road and will be met at the depot by clergy and members of all Catholic societies from here and from other points in Brown county. The body will be taken to St. Francis Xavier's cathedral to lie in state.
The funeral will be held Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at the cathedral.
The Rev. Fr. J. J. Burns, pastor of St. Francis, will officiate. He has three brothers and several nieces and nephews.

MOVIE SERMONS FOR WATERTOWN CHURCH

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Watertown, Wis., March 15.—And now the movies have invaded the church. As though the average worked preacher didn't have enough with which to contend, without being contrasted with a mechanical combination movie show and religious service.

One of the established film companies has decided to give its attention to religious subjects. The "movie sermon" will be a feature.
H. I. Davis, of this city, who will have charge of the project, says the film will be shown in conjunction with a phonograph which will deliver the sermon in "canned" form
while the movie illustrates it.
Davis says some of the most noted divines of this country will write "syndicate" sermons for the company. They will be edited to meet the approval of all creeds and will be released on specified dates, the same as the movies.

The new project has led to speculation over the possibility of a time when churches will be equipped with projectors to lead in prayers, announce the hymns, lead in singing and say the benediction in addition to the sermon in the ears of the worshippers to the accompaniment of a clicking picture machine. Davis will show the various scenes referred to in the communion, however, are reported to express approval of the new invention, hoping that it will be a real aid in their work.

TAKE WOMEN
SHOPLIFTERS
INTO COURTJANESVILLE POLICE ARREST
THREE ROCKFORDITES FOR EXTENSIVE THEFTS HERE.

RECOVER MERCHANDISE

C. E. Pierce Appears for Women in Court and Secures Their Release on $5.00 Bonds.

Mrs. Fred Nelson, L. M.
Green and Thomas Halcro, wives of well known Rockford men, face state's prison on the charge of grand larceny after their capture by Janesville police for alleged shoplifting in a number of local stores Saturday afternoon and evening.
This morning Attorney Charles Pierce appeared in the municipal court for the three women and waiving the reading of the warrant asked that the case be adjourned until the 24th to allow the authorities to check up the goods alleged to have been stolen and for the women to turn over any merchandise that they may have hidden at their homes in Rockford.

The Green woman is well known to Janesville police, having parents and relatives living here. She was formerly Grace Halney, was the wife of Edward Halley, a Janesville policeman, who was shot and killed in Michigan several years ago. She is now the wife of L. M. Green, an attorney who has been mentioned as a candidate for the office of police magistrate at Rockford. Fred Nelson is a factory foreman at Rockford and his wife, Louise, is connected with several Rockford clubs and is well known here. Ester Halcro's husband is employed as a mason.

Ball to the amount of five hundred dollars was furnished by the husbands, who were in Janesville this morning and saw their wives behind the county jail bars. Property was deposited with the clerk of the court and all three men signed the bond for the Halcro women. The entire party, with Attorney Pierce, left for Rockford on the eleven o'clock express. The three women committed to turn over whatever merchandise they are alleged to have taken in the past.

Bail for Bailey of Beloit was responsible for the women's apprehension.
He gave the Janesville police the "tip" that the three were in Janesville and Patrolman Harry Smith and Patrolman John Smith, who were on duty Saturday night, checked the three women. The three women had been in Beloit during Saturday morning and until two o'clock in the afternoon. They are said to have visited the following stores: Hal-cro's, Lipman's, Henry Chester, E. N.
Golberg store, Butterfield's and Balley and Son. Beloit police saw the three at the Interurban station and three suit cases which they checked at the interurban station. The lockers are guarded by a private key, which the patron keeps. When they went to the station, they were told they were in charge remarked. "What are you going to check these suitcases for, they are empty." They will be full enough when we come for them."
One of the women is alleged to have said, as she paid her fee of ten cents.

Case in Locker.
The alleged shoplifters left the suitcases, admitted to the police that the goods stolen from Beloit stores, and came to Janesville. Within three hours' time they went through the following stores in this city:
Dowdell's, Pond and Storey, E.
Burns, Golden Eagle, Luby's Shoe store, Simpson's, People's Drug store, Woolworth five and ten cent store,
and Howard's. They admitted to the police that they went to the store department in the Bostwick store and the amount of goods recovered tends to verify their story. The amount taken here will amount to over five hundred dollars, and the police estimate the total figure to be near one thousand dollars. It is said they would "lift" the goods and go to the interurban station, place the values in their suitcases, lock them in the locker and keep the key.

Chief Champion gained a confession from the Halcro woman after a sustained fight, and the Halcro woman turned over a key to her locker. Three sets of furs were taken from the T. P. Burns store, which are locked up in the locker.
The police were forced to send to the interurban superintendent for the muster key to open the lockers.
The three women contain two suitcases and several bundles of goods. At the station the women surrendered goods that they had concealed on their person, including a shirt waist, which one had hidden under her skirt.

Turn Over More.
Sunday morning at the county jail,
the Green woman gave Chief Champion a silk waist, and a pair of silk stockings, and a pair of shoes,
which she had hidden in her stockings.
At the station the woman declared they had nothing left and modestly revanted the police from searching their clothes. One of them gave the police the locker key that will result

It brings them together. It

Treatment of Scleritis.
Electricity was formerly the mystic remedy of the quack, but since electrical apparatus has become so essential for X-ray work more serious attention has been given by regular physicians to the physiological effects of this powerful agent. Among the notable results has been an electrical method of arresting the degeneration of the arteries so common in premature old age. A new announcement is that of Doctor Labordie, a French medical man, who gives details of a method of treating scleritis by ionization with sodium hypsulphite and shows what appears to be an effective cure for a painful disease. The effects are attributed in this treatment to sulphur oxide from electrolytic decomposition instead of the direct action of the electric current itself.

Electric Light Signals.
Several tunnels on the Southern Pacific are equipped with automatic electric lighting devices. When the train is within a hundred feet of the tunnel the lights go on, warning pedestrians and affording light for the engineer.

Electricity in Dyeing.
Among the tasks imposed in recent years upon that busy servant of man, electricity, is the acting as an assistant in the operation of dyeing.

EXPOSITION'S BEAUTY INSPIRES MARKHAM

Edwin Markham.

"I have seen the greatest revelation of beauty that was ever seen on earth," writes Edwin Markham, the poet of the Panama exposition. "I say this meaning it literally and with full regard for all that is known of ancient art and architecture and all that the modern world has hitherto seen of glory and grandeur."

DARDANELLES FORTS STRETCH FOR MILES

AT PRESENT RATE IT WILL TAKE MONTHS FOR FLEET TO REACH CONSTANTINOPLE.

SHELL THE OPEN PORTS

Twelve Undeclared Towns Levelled By Guns From Raiding English Cruisers.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

New York, March 15.—In the following correspondence the strength of the defenses of the Dardanelles is for the first time accurately described. The record of undeclared Turkish ports shelled by the British is a striking comment on the English outcry over the bombardment of Scarborough. The author of these letters, Zia Mufthy Zade Bey, is an attaché of the Turkish embassy. To the German Information Service, New York City:

Dear Sirs—Kindly find inclosed copies of two letters I have today sent respectively to the New York Times and the New York Sun for publication.

I would be very much obliged to you to reuse the newspapers do not publish my letters by Monday the 8th instant, you kindly give them publicity through your service so as to correct as much as possible the American opinion on the subject.

Thanking you in advance, I beg to remain, very respectfully yours,
ZIA MUFTHY ZADE BEY.

The following letter was dispatched to the New York Times:
March 4, 1915.

Sir—The newspapers are full of the attack of the allied fleets on the Dardanelles and seem to take pleasure in presenting it as a crushing Ottoman defeat. Moreover, they represent Constantinople as panic stricken with the sultan and his government ready to flee or surrender.

Dardanelles Long Attacked.
In this connection it would be wise to say that the allied fleets have been attacking the Dardanelles since Nov. 6 of last year and thus far have, according to their own official reports, only succeeded in sinking the forts. Therefore the great victory claimed by the allies seems to be greatly exaggerated.

It is well to take into consideration the chain of fortifications lying on both shores of the channel and increasing in power which the allies will have to silence before even reaching the sea. Marmara. Should they be as successful against these forts as they have been against the less important outer fortifications it will take them eleven months more to reach the sea. Marmara at the speed they have thus far advanced.

When the fleets reach this inner sea they will be confronted by two lines of defense, the first based on Marmara island and the second on Prinkipo island, respectively 100 and fifteen miles from the capital. So even under most advantageous circumstances for them it is probable that the allied fleets will require at least eighteen months to find themselves in a position of threatening the city proper of Constantinople, if they ever can do it.

It is also well to notice that the above calculations are based upon the data given by the allies' own reports and without taking into consideration the "unfavorable" factor which has "delayed" quite often lately the operations in the Dardanelles. Before they are through the way to Constantinople will seem less comfortable to the British and French sailors than the "way" to Tipperary.

Turks Not Excitable.
As to the rumors of panic in Constantinople, the stoic character of the Turkish people and the calmness of the "water drinkers" Turk have been duly demonstrated throughout history. The still more absurd rumor of the flight of the government and the sultan will find its denial in the declaration made by the sultan when his majesty only two years ago proclaimed his decision of remaining in his palace at the risk of being buried under his forefathers rather than to render to or fly before the allied Balkan armies hammering at its very gates.

The civic courage of our sultan is typical of all the nation and ought to be admired even by our bitterest enemies. Yours very truly,
ZIA MUFTHY ZADE BEY.

The following letter was sent to the New York Sun:

March 4, 1915.

Sir—At the time of the German raids on the British coast the allies, and especially the British press, very actively discredited the wars of warfare adopted by the German navy and did their utmost to stir up the public opinion of the world against their enemies by calling them "women and children killers" and other names.

Turkish Villages Bombarded.
I have since received from authoritative sources a list of "exploits" accomplished by the allied warships on unfortified ports and villages of the Ottoman empire, and I hereby give you the list, without comment, for publication so that the public may judge for itself.

Dec. 1 and 3.—Akaba bombarded by British battleship.

Dec. 15.—British cruiser bombarded and destroyed villages between Medjel Jaffa and Gaza.

Dec. 20.—British cruiser Dervis (?) bombarded Papaz and neighboring villages.

Dec. 21.—Same cruiser bombarded Dairi Yul.

Dec. 23.—Same cruiser bombarded Youmourtalik and Sarisaki.

Jan. 6 and 7.—Same cruiser bombarded coast between Sarisaki and Papaz.

Jan. 8.—British cruiser bombarded Karadivar and the coast near Mersine.

The Russian cruiser Askoid destroyed Berdit north of Jaffa.

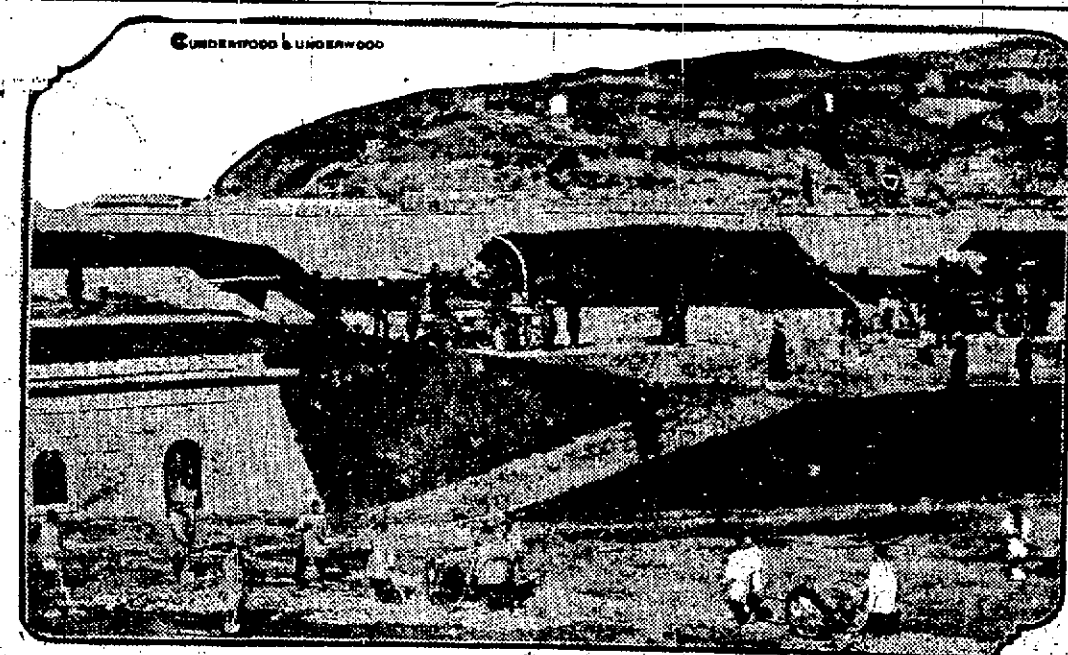

A French cruiser destroyed Ivabour, between Jaffa and Califa.

All Defenseless Places.
I defy any one to prove that the different villages above mentioned were not as defenseless as Scarborough and the other British ports attacked.

The heavy toll of life paid by innocent Turkish women and children thus murdered by the allies as light heartedly as if they were target practicing has never been mentioned in the press, whereas the entire world has been aroused by the death of poor British women and children sacrificed to the commercial ambition and greed of their fatherland.

Is it justice not to mention the murders committed by the allies? Is it fair play to let them kill defenseless women and children? And why is there this double standard for the two groups of belligerents? Yours truly,
ZIA MUFTHY ZADE BEY.

TURKISH FORTS ARMED WITH HEAVY KRUPP GUNS, THEIR GARRISONS COMMANDED BY GERMAN OFFICERS, GUARD BOSPORUS

Here is a view of the batteries of Madjar Kalesi and Kavak, one of the most important batteries on the Bosphorus. It is these modern fortifications equipped with giant Krupp guns and in command of experienced German officers that the Turks hope will hold back the progress of the allied fleet on its approach to Constantinople.

Orfordville News

Orfordville, March 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, who for the past six months or more have been making their home with their son, Ben, of Beloit, have returned to Orfordville and are again occupying their own residence.

Will J. Cleveland of Evansville is in the village for a few days, the guest of his father.

There was the regular services at both of the local churches on Sunday.

At the Lutheran church the service was in the Norwegian language in the morning and in English in the evening.

J. Heggard had the misfortune to lose a valuable horse on Friday. The animal was sick for several days.

There seems to be considerable trouble among horses in this section this spring.

Dr. W. W. Forbush made an early call at Orfordville today, having been present to assist in an operation on Mrs. P. M. Olson at Mercy hospital.

J. D. Egan transacted business in Orfordville on Saturday afternoon.

FINDS HUNTING GOOD ON FLORIDA COAST

New York Man Writes to Janesville Friend, Giving His Game Record for a Month.

George Chahoon, vice president of the J. and J. Rogers Paper company, An Sable Forks, New York, has been spending his winters for many years at Cleveland, a little town at the head of Charlotte Harbor, on the southwestern coast of Florida.

Mr. Chahoon is a great lover of field sports, and while well past seventy, he handles a gun today as well as when he was a boy. He goes to Florida for the benefit of the climate and for the shooting and fishing, which he thoroughly enjoys.

He keeps a daily record of his game score and during the quail season follows the dogs every other day in a letter to a Janesville friend he says: "Here is my score for thirty-one days: 884 quail, 4 coons, 1 owl, 2 Jack snipe, 1 fox, 1 mink, 2 clapper rails, 6 hawks, 1 rattlesnake, 2 possums, 2 skunks, 3 ducks, 1 fox squirrel, 3 doves."

Mr. Chahoon has been a great tarpon fisherman and his skill with rod and reel has landed many game fish after a long and exciting fight. He never allows a rattlesnake to escape and usually adds one or two to his score every winter.

OVER THREE HUNDRED HEADS GREEK NAVY AT PARENTS' MEETING

Hon. J. M. Whitehead, J. A. Craig, Judge C. L. Fifield and Others Take Part in Discussion.

The second parents' meeting, held Saturday evening at the high school building, was a bigger success than the first one held before the holidays. Over three hundred people took advantage of the opportunity afforded them, and attended the open house, followed by the program and discussion. Principal J. T. Shearer is high in the opinion of the way the parents turned out, and lays great hopes for a monster gathering at the next and final meeting of the year, to be held probably early in May.

Hon. John M. Whitehead, J. A. Craig, Judge Charles L. Fifield and many more prominent men of this city and ladies took part in the open discussion that brought the meeting to a close. The open house was a big feature of the evening, when every student's parents. The promoting of students' parents. The promoting of co-operation between the high school and the home is fast becoming more prevalent and is being brought about through the parents' meetings, which are a great help to the city and rural districts.

GOOD ADVICE TO FARMERS.

Russia is making herculean efforts to move her immense supplies of wheat to Black Sea ports ready for immediate shipment when the allied fleets succeed in storming the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus. India and South American countries have increased their wheat area this year, and when the immense surpluses of these countries are made available, prices will go down with a bang. In the meantime the American farmer had better diversify his crops and not be caught later in the year with millions of bushels of wheat when the chief demand is for other kinds of farm products.

This is the report which comes from the foreign sale department of one of the big American manufacturers of automobiles. It is worth considering because the tendency is to increase the acreage of wheat this year, under the belief that the foreign market will demand our surplus at high prices.

Russia is the greatest wheat producing country in the world. The war blockade has prevented moving her last year's crop, but this will soon be removed and when this occurs the bottom is bound to fall out, and with the new crop coming on, the market will be overstocked for some time to come.

The American farmer will do well this year to pay more attention to stock and coarse grain, than to wheat. There is a shortage of meat today, and will be for years to come. The price of meat regulates the price of corn.

The yield of corn, under intelligent cultivation, is increasing every year, and at prices which have been levelled for a dozen years, it is a more profitable crop than wheat. The demand for American foodstuffs will be heavy for some time to come, but the outlook for wheat is not promising.

"GENTLEMAN'S AGREEMENT."

Despite the fact that Secretary of State Donald G. Crisp, with the statement that through a "gentleman's agreement" it was planned to make no requests for the appropriations voted by the legislature of 1913, until after June 1, it appears that the agreement was violated and the investigating committee has discovered that even if it had held good there would have been no money in the state treasury to meet the demands. A nice state of affairs for a commonwealth like Wisconsin! The idea that after candidates for a business administration had been nominated at the September primaries after the people had been taught to believe that they would have a redress from excessive taxation, through a "gentleman's agreement," the money to meet the appropriations was left off the tax roll and the state was allowed to run along some four million dollars shy of what it should have to be solvent. All this so that clever politicians could be played and the business administration repudiated when the nineteen taxes were levied and it was found that they were excessive. Nice sort of politics these reformers play is it not? Roosevelt sent men into political purgatory for even less than this and used a "shorter and uglier" term than a mere "gentleman's agreement." The Milwaukee Free Press seeks to bolster up the late administration by saying that it was known all along. Of course it was, but the fact the state tax was not demanded at the last tax levy was not explained or understood as it is now. The Free Press is taking the wrong track in this popular storm and they had better screw the one-barrelled eye-glass firmly into the eye and look at the rocks ahead before they continue to support such nefarious tactics as have just been uncovered by the investigating committee. Fortunately it was found out in time and retrenchment may save the state from financial embarrassment and doubtless will, but we can thank fortune we have a business man at the head of affairs and a safe and sane legislative back of him. No red-eyed, wild hair-waving reformers at Madison this year even though some would make us believe it.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

Wisconsin has about as much use for a constitutional convention as a dog has for two tails. True, the dog could wag both and thus show his sympathies, but a state constitutional convention at this time would be a mere travesty. It is part and parcel with the "bill factory" ideas and should not be given serious consideration by the legislature. It would not only be an added cost to the taxpayer, just at a time when economy is the watchword, but it could not really do any serious good aside from giving embryo statesmen an opportunity to exploit their individual views and deliver long and windy arguments in favor of this or that point at issue. Stop the nonsense, gentlemen, and get busy and cut down appropriations; that is one way to reduce the tax levy.

STAND TOGETHER.

The slogan "Stand Together," to make a concerted effort for a bigger and better Janesville, is in the air. The business men of the city are united in their endeavours to bring about conditions that will increase the local trade facilities, and the Commercial club is behind efforts to aid the city materially. Stand together, pull together. Forget any past differences and be firm in the one idea of making Janesville a city to be proud of. This can be accomplished by showing a united front, and the sooner the men and women organizations of the city fully appreciate this the better it will be for the community. The women's clubs are doing their part and they will succeed. This means much to the city as a whole and the establishment of a girls' club room, a nucleus for a good Y. W. C. A., will be most beneficial to the city as a whole. Let everyone put their shoulder to the wheel and the result will be astonishing.

It would appear as though the users of druggists' supplies are bound to feel the effect of the war when it is learned that Germany, which has been the great supply station of the world for certain kinds of salts, has prohibited the exportation of them because they found that the American manufacturers were buying them to use in explosives for the English and French armies to destroy the subjects of the Fatherland. Here is where innocent suffer with the wicked.

Shop-lifting is not a profitable occupation to follow, and the Rockford women who journeyed into Wisconsin, stopping off at Beloit and then coming on to Janesville in search of further plunder, may learn before they are through with their present troubles that honesty is the best policy after all. Also, incidentally, they may learn that the "rube" police oftentimes are smarter than their city brothers when it comes to spotting criminals.

La Follette has decided to let his state go by default for some weeks yet while he gathers in a few dollars in the coin of the realm against a long, hard summer and also as the sinews of war for his campaign next year. Meanwhile the legislature will continue to act as usual and there will be no hurried conference at Maple Bluff for instructions as had been expected.

That one mill tax has been a burden for the taxpayers for years and they will welcome the relief that will come when the Ellingson bill, which goes away with it, passes the legislature, and goes to the governor for signature. It is a good bill, introduced at an opportune moment, and it is to be hoped it will be passed.

Optimist and Pessimist.
The optimist says: "Go ahead; there's not a chance to lose; The time is now and on the dead, you really can't refuse."
The pessimist says: "Wait a bit, and look before you leap; If there is any good in it, the chance will surely keep."

The optimist sees but the sun, the pessimist for rain.
The optimist prepares for fun, the pessimist for pain.
The optimist pulls forward, and the pessimist pulls back;
The one throws wide the throttle and the other sands the track.

With no one 'round to raise a fuss 'twould be a tiresome game.
The optimist with his glad song, the pessimist so blue,

Work for the Legislature.

The legislature doesn't seem to have very much to do, just at present and in order that the members may not suffer from ennui we would suggest that the following bills be introduced in this state:
A bill making Groundhog day a legal holiday.
A bill to widen and deepen the alimentary canal.
A bill providing a state board of examiners of false teeth.
A bill regulating the length of words used in banquet addresses.
A bill providing for a closed season on political job hunting.

If we had it to do over again we would not let come out of kind of a job. Last Monday we observed one of the fairest of our village damsels go tripping down the street. NEW ELECTRIC TRUCK-CRANE

Designed Especially for Unloading, Loading and Transporting Heavy Loads for Short Distances.

An electric motor-truck crane, designed for unloading, loading and transporting the loads for short distances in yards and shop buildings is shown in this illustration while transporting a one-ton load, says the Popular Mechanics. The hook of the swinging crane, which is mounted on the front end of the truck, is raised and lowered by a hoist of one-ton capacity mounted just back of the crane, the motors driving the hoist and the vehicle being operated from a battery on the rear end of the truck.

When material is to be unloaded and deposited within a 6 to 8-ft. radius, and this action does not require the material to be moved vertically more than 10 ft., the truck is run into position, the brakes are set, and the truck remains stationary, the boom of the crane moving back and forth between the picking-up and deposition place. When material has to be transported to a distance in the warehouse or yard, the truck picks up the load from the railroad car or wagon, conveys it to its destination, and sets or piles it where desired. The short wheelbase permits the driving of the machine about warehouse and shop aisles.

SIDE TALKS

By RUTH K. CAMERON

INSTEAD OF ROSES.

The florist held out a spray of exquisite pink roses alluringly, but the girl with the bright eyes and the thoughtful face turned suddenly away from them. "Two dollars for half a dozen, no, I don't think I'll take them after all," she said decisively and hurried resolutely out of the shop.

Outside she put the two-dollar bill she had been darning back into her purse and stood looking into the florist's window, her eyes on a scarlet poinsettia, her thoughts far away.

Her Own Experience.

"When I was sick," she was thinking, "people sent me expensive flowers when I was sickest and could hardly enjoy them, and then of course there was nothing left when I was getting better and loved to have anything come to break the monotony."

"And now Gretchen has typhoid and will probably be sick a long while and here I am starting to do the same thing. Of course I'd like to buy the roses and other things too, but I can't afford that. And anyhow it isn't the expense or even the beauty of the things that counts when you're sick so much as the fun of having something come to break the monotony."

Planning What Two Dollars Would Buy.

"I think I'll just go home now and not send her anything but a letter for a few days while other people are sending flowers, and then I'll plan out how many little things I can get for the two dollars I should have spent for the roses, and I'll send them every day or two while she's getting better."

Anyone who has ever had a long convalescence knows what a delightful excitement it is to have the postman or the expressman bring some little package no matter how small its intrinsic value. To Gretchen in her monotonous typhoid convalescence there came every day or two some little reminder from the one friend who had helped to fill her sickroom with flowers during the first few days of her illness.

First came half a dozen narcissus bulbs with a little rhymed legend telling of the sweetness they would bring if given a bowl of water to grow in. Next was a little hand-made scrap book of snapshots of various friends and relatives which the girl with the bright eyes had scurried about to gather. Next came one of the English magazines that are full of pictures.

Ten Gifts for the Price of One.

A dainty little pudding helped make one of the patient's first meals appetizing. A small but very sweet bunch of mayflowers followed; then a tumbler of home-made iced tea; then a little ten-cent humorous magazine; next a little single flower vase with a bouquet in it; another magazine and lastly a batch of delicious home-made candy.

As I said before, if you have ever had a long convalescence you can appreciate what the interest of having all these little things come meant. If you haven't perhaps in planning to send something to a sick friend, you'll take Gretchen's word for the value of the plan. Nothing in my life ever pleased me so much, she said, "I just believe I could have lived through that getting well if I hadn't had those little things to cheer me up."

Glimpses of Married Life

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Well, how was everything?" asked Nell as the last guest closed the door, and tired but happy she turned to Dick.

"All right," came in hearty tones as her husband came to the door. "The dinner was fine."

"I thought so myself. A pleasant smile was on Nell's face. "It really was my initiation into the social set here and I was anxious to have things go extra well."

"How did you like Miss Rudolph?" Dick turned to ask a question, the clock key in his hand.

"I wasn't very much impressed with her. Why did the Parsons bring her? I forgot the reason they gave when they called on you."

"Why, she is the firm's new stenographer, and as she landed here a stranger, and as she landed here a stranger, they thought it would be pleasant for her to come tonight."

"So that's a stenographer," said Nell meditatively. "She doesn't seem to have a bit of a business air about her. She seemed so quiet and dreamy."

"She is a stranger; that would account for her silence. Her eyes are fine, aren't they?"

"Her face has not enough expression to suit me. Who was doing the work here she came?"

"It's a new person. She will work for all of us. She has her desk in my office, as I am out of it much of the time. I don't believe she will get on my nerves much. I did not like the idea at first, but of course I am sorry you have to have her in your office." Nell was slowly taking down her hair and the face she saw in the glass was serious.

"Dick, I am going to change my reflection and came up behind her. "Why so serious?" he asked, pinching her cheek.

"Her face toward him by taking her chin in his hand. "What is it?" he asked gravely.

"I suppose you will laugh at me, but I don't like the idea of that girl being poked into your office. You are there many more waking hours than you are at home, and such intimate associations are not right."

"You had just as much reason to hate the name husband; he cast enough odium on it."

"You know everything one does in a little village is discussed by everybody. Do be careful, Dick."

"Oh, I'll take out my words and look at them before speaking to her," said Dick with mock gravity.

Heart and Home Problems

By MRS. ELLA BETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I met a fellow one night and was introduced to him by the girl whom I was with. She was with her friend and after getting home she invited me into the house. After spending the evening together for a while, the fellow I was with started to make love. I did not object, and when he spoke of leaving I told him not to go, and kept him after he had spoken of it several times. After thinking of the way I acted, I wrote and apologized to you. Do you think I did it right in writing?

(2) While away last summer I met a fellow of whom I thought a great deal. After coming home he wrote to me and came to see me twice. Then I turned against him and it seems as though he would like to come and see me again and make a greater friendship. I feel as though I cannot stop writing to him because he is a good moral boy, and still I meet others whom I like better, but I cannot depend upon them. What shall I do?

(1) You indeed have cause to worry. You have made yourself cheap by spooning and giving love too easily. The boy would not have given him reason to think that he might. As for the letter—it probably did no good in keeping him for a friend; he could scarcely have respected for you after the way you acted that night. But it will show that you at least have an idea of what is right. Profit by this experience and stop spooning, and never urge, or even ask, a boy to stay after he has suggested going.

(2) If this boy had a desire to come to see you he would certainly do it. You have no reason to think that we would like to come as long as he does not. You are assuming altogether too much in thinking that he cares for you. A boy is not backward in showing it if he really cares for a girl. Keep on corresponding, if you wish, but give up the idea of going together.

"REST CURE" DOCTOR GOES ON TRIAL FOR WHITE SLAVERY COUNT.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Chicago, March 15.—Dr. Louis Weinburg of Ligenier, Ind., the "rest cure" doctor, is scheduled to stand trial here today on a charge of transporting for immoral purposes, Miss Grace Belle Rocher from Kalamazoo, Mich., to Chicago. Miss Rocher is alleged to have made the trip May 6, 1913.

Dr. Weinburg, who had been treating the 18-year-old girl for months, suggested to her in May that she go to Kalamazoo for a "rest cure," which is alleged to have paid her way there and later to have joined her in an indictment charges that Dr. Weinburg and Miss Rocher came to Chicago together.

IMMIGRATION INCREASES IN NORTHERN WISCONSIN BECAUSE OF RICH CROPS.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., March 15.—Statistics show that the immigration of farmers in Wisconsin is increasing enormously, while emigration is decreasing proportionately. This is particularly true of the upper part of the state.

The principal reason assigned for this, by agricultural experts, is Wisconsin's superiority over other farm states in the average production of crops to the acre. It is estimated that 1,000 farmers from other states have settled in northern Wisconsin in the last five years. The reason is seen in the government's figures covering the common crops of corn, oats, wheat, rye, barley, potatoes, and hay. Hay is expressed in hundredweight instead of tons to equalize values in comparison with the other products, which are given in bushels. The average production per acre of the crop is shown as follows: Upper Wisconsin, 24.6 bushels; Minnesota, 26.7; Iowa, 24.2; Ohio, 24.7; North Dakota, 24.1; Nebraska, 22.4; South Dakota, 22.6; Illinois, 22.2; Kansas, 20.2; Missouri, 19.3; Texas, 19.3; Oklahoma, 19.2; Missouri, 15.7.

FOR LITTLE FOLK

THE ILLNESS OF CHARLEY COLT.

One morning Charley Colt woke up and said, "Oh, dear, I'm sick. I ache in every bone I have—send for the doctor, quick!" The dreadful state that he was in alarmed good Mrs. Horse. Said she, "I'll telephone at once for Doctor Owl, of course."

She called up Dr. Owl and said, "Come over quickly, do! My son is very, very sick." Old Doctor Owl said, "Who?" "My son," said frantic Mrs. Horse; "I fear he's going to die!" Said Dr. Owl, "I'll come at once as fast as I can fly."

When he had looked at Charley Colt and felt his pulse, he said, "I think that for a day or two he'd better stay in bed. I find he's threatened with the croup, which would be bad, of course, but for the present have no fear, he's just a little hoarse."

"Feed him entirely on rolled oats, they're easy to digest. And keep a nice hot poultice of horse-radish on his chest." But Charley said when Doctor Owl had finally gone away, "I will not stay in bed and have a poultice on, neigh! neigh!"

He went outdoors, this wilful colt, and waded in the creek. And in a little while he was so hoarse he couldn't speak. Thought he, "Perhaps I'd better go back home; I feel so queer." Just then he met a man who said, "What are you doing here?"

When Charley tried to talk to him he couldn't make a sound. The man said, "I believe you're lost. I'll take you to the pound." (The pound, you know, is where they take the animals that stray, and once an animal is there he seldom gets away.)

Thought Charley Colt, "I do not want to visit in the pound, because, to tell the truth, it has a most unpleasant sound; but I suppose I'll have to go. I really have no choice. Although there's not a bit of me that's lost, except my voice."

The fate of wilful Charley Colt is very much in doubt. Some think he still is in the pound, some think that he is out. However that may be, I'm sure it's just as plain as day. That wilfulness in children or in colts will never pay.

UP-TO-DATE RECIPES.

Baked Pork Mush—Cook a pound of lean pork until the meat is very tender, then remove the fat and cool water, taking off the fat in a solid cake and keeping it for frying. If there is more than a quart of the broth, strain it down to that amount. If less, add sufficient water to make a quart. Bring it to boiling point and stir into it a cupful of corn meal which has been wet to a paste with a little of the cold broth. Cook for an hour, then add meat finely chopped, also a teaspoon of salt and half teaspoon powdered sage. Stir well, then pour into pan to chill. Cut in slices and fry in fat skimmed from the broth. Or, stir into the mush an egg, grease pan before pouring in, rub some of the fat over top of mush and make in oven until the top is nice and brown.

Stuffed Ham—Select a very fine quality of ham, a newly cured ham if possible. Boil slowly until so well done that bone can be removed. (It can be taken out or not as you please.) For the dressing take one pint toasted bread or crackers, two teaspoons celery seed, one-half teaspoon black pepper, one-half teaspoon ground spice, one-half teaspoon cloves, one tablespoon mustard, three tablespoons sugar, six yolks of eggs, some good pickle and two or three onions chopped fine; a little vinegar; mix all well. Make incisions to the bone all over ham and press dressing into incisions, forcing it through the lean part of ham, then spread remainder of dressing all over ham and glaze with white of egg. Bake slowly about an hour.

USE GOOD ENGLISH

Use Good English, And Your Friends Will Respect You More. (This is Lesson IX in a series of short, simple lessons in English, by C. R. Rounds, Inspector of English, Wisconsin State Normal Schools.)

UGHT

One of the finest words in our language is ought. Originally it indicated obligation, or what is owed, and this is still its most common meaning; thus: We ought to do our duty. We ought to be careful. He ought not to have done such a careless thing. All children ought to honor their parents.

At the present time ought is also used to indicate strong probability; thus: That ought not to cause us any trouble. There ought not (or oughtn't) to be any difficulty about that.

The most frequent error in connection with ought is the wrong and unnecessary use of had with it. Had should NEVER be used with ought; thus: we never should say He had ought to have done so and so. Many people who wouldn't say had ought do make a mistake that is just as mischievous. They say We'd ought to be careful. Now, we'd means we had; so these people are just as much in error as those who pronounce the had. Remember, don't use had with ought. These sentences are correct: He ought to have gone. Ought you to go now? Oughtn't you to go now? We ought to be there by eight o'clock. We ought to have been there by eight o'clock. He ought to be here soon. That ought to be easy. He oughtn't to have gone. We ought to be careful about our English.

Surely Would.

Best Laxative For Children

When your baby is cross and fretful instead of the happy, laughing little dear you are accustomed to, in all probability the digestion has become deranged and the bowels need attention. Give it a mild laxative, dispel the irritability and bring back the happy content of babyhood.

The very best laxative for children is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, because it contains no opiate or narcotic drug, is pleasant tasting and acts gently, but surely, without gripping or other distress. Druggists sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle. For a free trial bottle write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 452 Washington St., Monticello, Ills.

NO STOMACH PAIN, GAS, INDIGESTION IN FIVE MINUTES

"PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN" IS THE ONLY REAL STOMACH REGULATOR KNOWN.

"Really does" put bad stomachs in order—"really does" overcome indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, heartburn and sourness in five minutes—that just makes Pape's Diapepsin the largest selling stomach regulator in the world. If what you eat ferments into stubborn lumps, you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food and acid; head is dizzy and aches; breath foul; tongue coated; your insides filled with bile and undigestible waste, remember the moment "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. It's truly astonishing—almost marvelous, and the joy is its harmlessness.

A large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin will give you a hundred dollars' worth of satisfaction or your druggist hands you your money back.

It's worth its weight in gold to men and women who can't get their stomachs regulated. It belongs in your home—should always be kept handy in case of a sick, sour, upset stomach during the day or night. It's the quickest, surest and most harmless stomach regulator in the world.

WILLMANN DELIVERS MID-LENTEN SERMON

RECTOR OF TRINITY EPISCOPAL CHURCH, GIVES SCHOLARLY DISCOURSE.

RELIEF FROM BONDAGE

Promises of Relief from Doubt, Misbelief and Sin Are Made to the Penitent.

Rev. Henry Willmann gave a scholarly sermon at the Trinity church Sunday morning from the text, "Brethren, we are not children of the woman, but of the free," chapter four, verse 31. The sermon dealt with the message of mid-lenten and the promises of the Bible study of parable, fable and allegories. He said in part:

"Our Lord, Jesus Christ, taught many things by parables. A parable is a spiritual lesson drawn from a natural object. It does not go beyond the natural order of things, but points out the lessons contained in them and to be learned from them. It is true to nature and interprets it. A fable bends the conditions, and order of creation to its own purpose by assigning human power to animals, plants and dead things, as we see in fable books. It would be a fable to say that the trees shuddered and shed their leaves in fear when the first ax was being forged. But the ax on the anvil said to the weeping trees, 'You have nothing to fear from me unless you first give up a hardy faith in the ark and the passage of the ax speak, or tree weep, it simply opens the great book of nature and points out the many lessons written there and shows us how to understand the things which by our senses. The incidents of the fable are largely drawn from the imagination.'

The Old Testament we meet with the fables of the trees which would choose a king and of the thistles and of the cedar. But there are also allegories in the Holy Scriptures. An allegory assumes that there is more intended in a history than appears on the surface. We are taught in the prayer book that 'Holy Matrimony signifies to us the mystical union that is between Christ and His church. There we learn to see something allegorical or mystical, just as in the ministration of Holy Baptism, we are told that the deliverance of Noah in the ark and the passage of the Israelites through the Red Sea are figures of Holy Baptism. In the Epistles for the fourth Sunday in Lent the historical fact that Abraham had two sons, Isaac, the son of Sarah, the free woman; and Ishmael, the son of Hagar, Sarah's bond maid is revealed. This is called by the apostle Paul in the letter to the Galatians the allegory of the two covenants, the one between God and those who are born under the law of Moses and are in spiritual bondage; the other the new covenant, of those who are born again of water and the spirit and live the life of grace, liberty and fellowship with God. The church or mystical Body of Christ. Thus the allegory implies that God overrules all things in history as the parable implies that He overrules all things in the evolution of nature and that we may find both in the one and other indications of His guidance and power.

"St. Paul's teaching in this part of the Epistle to the Galatians leads us to the conclusion that God throughout history has been preparing, for and working out an eternal purpose of bringing those who are his sons and daughters by creation, to a life of liberty. Before the foundation of the world He saw redemption when in union with Christ as possessors of the glorious liberty of the Sons of God.

"But the goal of liberty could not be reached at once. The child has to be brought to a course of education for the freedom of manhood. There are conditions of human life in which the bondage of discipline is necessary and freedom is dangerous. The human race had its period of childhood and was treated accordingly. The law of Moses was our schoolmaster to bring out Christ. Christ came to take us out of the care of our schoolmaster to adopt us as sons and complete our education and to prepare us here for grace and eternal liberty to come.

"He who was of the bond woman was of the flesh, was a Jew. Which things are an allegory for these are the two covenants. The one from Mount Sinai answereth to Jerusalem, which now is in bondage to her children. The other, of which alone is free, is the mother of us all. Both grace and truth come by Jesus Christ. Grace is a spiritual gift from God, a power from on high, which enters into our nature and leads to Christ and regenerates, renews, cleanses, sanctifies, strengthens and perfects it. It is the life of God in the soul of man and is a special gift from the new covenant. We are born in that state of grace, but are born in original sin which is the corruption of our nature.

"The law, which revealed the depth and extent of this corruption, did not heal it. It left those who were under the law in the bondage of sin longing for deliverance, which came at last by the Spirit of Jesus Christ, which sets us free from the law of sin and death.

"In the early part of Lent we are taught to think of sin as a debt we cannot pay, as an alienation from reconciliation, as a bondage from which we cannot cleanse ourselves; and as a bondage from which we cannot deliver ourselves.

"There is no bondage in our heavenly home, for the glory of God lightens the city; and no impurity, for nothing enters within it that defileth or worketh abomination or such a lie. There is no bondage to sin there for Jerusalem, which is above is free. In the Holy City God, who is with men, shall wipe away all tears from their eyes, and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crime, neither shall there be any more pain for the former things are passed away.

"Mid-Lenten brings with it promises of refreshment to the weary soul; of relief from bondage of every kind and of the glorious liberty of the sons of God. Now that there is relief from miserable bondage of doubt, misbelief and sin. Hereafter will come our perfect consummation of bliss, both in body and soul. The life of faith and intellectual freedom. The promise of Our Lord is 'Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free.' Faith is the correspondence thought and deed with the truth. It is the divinely devised fables when we rest in the revelation of great truth of the Christian religion, made known by our Lord to his Apostles and contained in the Catholic creed, the faith once for all delivered to the Saints and by them handed on to their successors.

"Then there is a blessedness in moral freedom given us by the power of grace which breaks the chain of evil habits and cleanses the conscience from the stain of guilt. Together with intellectual and moral freedom comes joy and peace in believing the free spirit in the Son of God.

"Every victory gained by the power of grace over old and evil habits increases our joy and peace in believing and renews our hopes of the resurrection life, when the body as well as the soul will be free and be raised up a glorious spiritual body, free from sin, disease, pain, imperfection and death.

"Then there is the joy of freedom from all the false and perverted desires you mature, the restless craving after the money, pleasure, change, fashion, society, excitement, knowledge of evil. The freedom of life of grace produces in the soul godliness with contentment which is great gain; it sets its affection on things above, not on things on the earth and frees the inner life from over anxiety and worry.

"Liberty does not mean freedom from the law of God, but ability to live according to the law of our Father as described by St. John as 'lawlessness' and a sinner is not a free man, he is the slave of the bond-servant of his affections and lusts. A country where law is free and justice administered is not a free country. A man who is not what St. John calls 'Underlaw to God' is not the Lord's free man. It is the law of the spirit of life in Christ which Jesus sets us free from the bondage of the law of sin and of death by giving us power to do the will of God.

"Christ in liberty shall be able to believe what is true, to love what is good and to do what is right. 'The Church of God in the Creed teaches us to believe what is true, to love what is good, and to do what is right. The Lord's Prayer, which is good, and in the Ten Commandments, to do what is right. The Creed directs our thoughts aright, the Ten Commandments direct our actions aright. So we are guided by our Mother Church we become free in thought, free in heart, free in life.

"Jerusalem, which is the mother of us all, shall be free by which this freedom is gained and exercised, is power from on high. It is the power of grace, the power of the Holy Spirit freely given to those who are baptized into Christ to enable them to do the Father's will on earth as it is done in the heavenly Jerusalem, where the Father's name is hallowed, the Father's face is seen, and the Father's will always done."

STRENGTH

Without Overloading the Stomach. The business man, especially, needs food in the morning that will not overload the stomach, but give mental vigor for the day.

Much depends on the start a man gets each day as to how he may expect to accomplish the work on hand. He can't be alert with a heavy, fried-meat-and-potatoes breakfast, requiring a lot of vital energy in digesting it.

A California business man found a food combination for producing energy. He writes:

"For years I was unable to find a breakfast food that had nutrition enough to sustain a business man without overloading his stomach, causing indigestion and kindred ailments.

"Being a very busy and also a very nervous man, I had about decided to give up breakfast altogether. But luckily I was induced to try Grape-Nuts.

"Since that morning I have been a new man; can work without tiring, my head is clear and my nerves strong and quiet.

"I find that Grape-Nuts, with a little sugar and a small quantity of cold milk, makes a delicious morning meal, which invigorates me for the day's business."

LEGISLATURE FACES ITS BUSIEST WEEK

Most Important Committee Hearings of Session Are Scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., March 15.—The most important committee hearings to be held by this legislature are scheduled for this week. In the senate 68 bills are up for hearing, which is one-fifth of all bills introduced in the assembly and received back from the public printers. In the senate 68 bills are up for hearing. This is the largest amount of work that the legislature has yet placed before itself for consideration.

Thursday is Big Day. Of the hearings of state-wide importance most of them are scheduled for Thursday afternoon. At that time the senate committee on corporations and the assembly committee on labor will hold a hearing on the McQuay bill to exempt municipal utilities from the supervision of the railroad commission; the assembly committee on excise and fees will hear arguments on the McCowan bill to submit the question of state-wide prohibition to a vote of the people and the Jensen bill providing for county option, and on Thursday the joint committee on state affairs in both houses will give a hearing all bills to extend the right of suffrage to women.

A number of important hearings have also been scheduled for tomorrow. The assembly committee on labor and the senate committee on education and public welfare will hold hearings on all bills relating to compensation of state workmen's compensation law. The Hoffman bill would increase the amount of compensation paid for partial injuries. Both would raise the scale of compensation from 65 per cent of the average annual wage to 75 per cent. The Prescott bill providing that one day's rest in three shall be given to all firemen in paid fire departments has been scheduled by the assembly committee on municipalities for a hearing tomorrow.

Measures Up Wednesday. On Wednesday the senate committee on education will consider the Hanson bill to repeal the primary election pamphlet; the Skogmo resolution for the calling of a constitutional convention will be heard by the senate judiciary committee on the same day; and the assembly committee on agriculture will consider all bills for the abolition of the state fair, the cutting down of the appropriation and the reorganization of the state fair board.

The assembly committee on education announces that the Hambrecht bill will be given the boards Wednesday afternoon. This bill has been the subject of much debate because of the advisability of increasing the constitution fees from $100 to $150 a year. Assemblyman Hoffman of Calumet county is the author of a bill to repeal the appropriation of $100,000 for the erection of a dormitory, one of the normal schools of the state. When the law was passed many were of the opinion that the dormitory was to be located at Stevens Point. The matter was left to the discretion of the board of normal regents and it was located at Stevens Point. The Hoffman bill would repeal this law, as the building has not been erected. Hoffman is the author of the bill to repeal the appropriation of $350,000 for dormitories at the University of Wisconsin. Assemblyman Hambrecht has offered a bill which will prohibit a man who is a candidate for office acting as an inspector of election.

BROOKLYN

Brooklyn, March 12.—William Dudley, chief of bureau of visual instruction, gave an illustrated on "Mexico and Its People" at the high school Monday evening.

HAVE NARROW ESCAPE IN RUNAWAY ACCIDENT

Miss Mary Pearl, Mrs. Patrick Arner and Two Children Injured When Runaway Horse Hits Automobile.

Miss Mary Pearl, who resides north of this city on route eight, Mrs. P. H. Arner, 508 North Bluff street, and two children, Elmer and Mark, received minor injuries in a runaway accident Sunday afternoon on West Milwaukee street. The Pearl girl is under the care of a physician at her home, suffering from painful bruises and a nervous breakdown, and the Arner baby required medical attention.

Miss Pearl was driving a horse hitched to a light buggy down Milton street when the horse started in a dash down the street and the young woman was unable to manage the animal with the broken harness. She was thrown out of the buggy and the horse ran into the raring car owned and driven by George Burns, striking the front of the occupants of the buggy.

The buggy was driven by Arner and his holding her two year old son, and the force of the collision threw her ten feet to the curb. She fell with the baby in her arms. Mark Arner, aged seven, went over the dashboard and fell to the side of the auto only receiving a few scratches on his face and hands. Miss Pearl received a bad bruise on her forehead and was hurt about the shoulder in her fall to the pavement.

$2,333.80 for the year, and the college men were conservative in their estimates. These four cows, two four-year-olds and two five-year-olds, produced more than 15,000 pounds each of milk and over 800 pounds of butter. They averaged 275 eight-gallon cans of milk which was sold at a wholesale price of $1.25 a can, making an income from milk alone of $343.75 from each cow. The value of this milk at the prevailing retail price would have been more than $700 for each cow.

In addition to the milk produced, one of the cows gave birth to a male calf which sold for $300, and the others gave birth to heifer calves which brought $400 each. The cost of feeding was estimated to be $135.30 a head for the year.

All of the six younger cows tested made creditable records but the amount of production was not so great as that of the leaders of the herd. Senator Stephenson's Holstein herd is said to be one of the best in the United States.

A CHILD DOESN'T LAUGH AND PLAY IF CONSTIPATED

IF PEVISH, FEVERISH AND SICK, GIVE "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS."

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little bowels, liver and stomach need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give it teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile, and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child to-morrow, and gets the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

"Are you laughing at me, darling?" She gave him one of her searching, unfathomable glances, and then smiled with roguish mirth.

"Isn't it your mission in life to amuse and entertain me?"

"I love you, Yvonne—Good God, how I love you!" he cried abruptly. His eyes burnt with sudden flame of passion as he bent over her. His face quivered; his whole being tingled with the fierce spasm of an uncontrollable desire to crush the warm, adorable body to his breast in the supreme ecstasy of possession.

She surrendered herself to his passionate embrace. A little later, she withdrew herself from his arms, her lips still quivering with the fierceness of his kisses. Her eyes, dark with wonder and perplexity, regarded his transfigured face for a long, tense moment.

"Is this love, James?" she whispered. "Is this the real, true love?"

"What else, in heaven's name, can it be?" he cried. He was sitting upon of his hands, clenched tightly beneath his back, were white. "He has never heard me utter it."

She looked at him dazedly. There was something in her eyes that caused him to shift his own steady gaze uncomfortably. He could not have explained what it was, but it gave him a curiously uneasy feeling, as of impending peril. It was not unlike the queer, inexplicable though definite sensation of danger that more than once he had experienced in the silent, tranquil depths of great forests.

"I wonder what could have happened to make you so bitter toward her," she went on, still watching him through half closed eyes. "Was she unfaithful to you? Was—"

"Good God, Yvonne!" he cried, an angry light jumping into his eyes—the eyes that so recently had been ablaze with love.

"We must never speak of—of that again," he said, a queer note of hoarseness in his voice. "Never, do you understand?" He was very much shaken.

"Forgive me," she pleaded, stretching out her hand to him. "I am foolish, but I did not dream that I was being cruel or unkind. Perhaps, dear, it is because I am—jealousous."

"There is no one—nothing to be jealous of," he said, passing a hand over his moist brow. Then he drew nearer and took her hand in his. He looked again at the arm of her chair. She leaned back and sighed contentedly, the smile on her red lips growing sweeter with each breath that she took. He felt the blood warming once more in his veins.

For a long time they sat thus, looking into each other's eyes without speaking. He was trying to fathom the mystery that lurked at the bottom of those smiling wells; she, on the other hand, deluded herself with the idea that she was reading his innermost thoughts.

"I have been considering the advisability of sending Frederic abroad for a year or two," said he at last.

She started. She had been far from right in her reading. "Now? This winter?"

"Yes. He has never been abroad."

"Indeed? And he is half European, too. It seems—forgive me, James. Really, you know, I cannot always keep my thoughts from slipping out. You shouldn't expect it, dear."

"I suppose it is only natural that you should inquire," he said resignedly. "Of my servants," she added pointedly.

He flushed slightly. "I dare say I deserve the rebuke. It will not be necessary to pursue that line of inquiry, however. I shall tell you the story myself some day, Yvonne. Will you not bear with me?"

She met the earnest appeal in his eyes with a slight frown of annoyance. "Who is to tell me the wife's side of the story?"

The question was like a blow to him. He stared at her as if he had not heard aright. Before he could speak, she went on coolly:

"I dare say there are two sides to it, James. It's usually the case."

He winced. "There is but one side to this one," he said, a harsh note in his voice.

"That is why I began my inquiries with Mrs. Desmond," she said enigmatically. "But I shan't pursue them any farther. You love me; that is all I care to know—or that I require."

"I do love you," he said, almost imploringly.

She stroked his gaunt cheek. "Then we may let the other woman—go hang, eh?"

He felt the cold sweat start on his brow. Her callous remark slashed his finer sensibilities like the thrust of a dagger. He tried to laugh, but only succeeded in producing a painful grimace.

"And now," she went on, as if the matter were fully disposed of, "we will discuss something tangible, eh? Frederic."

"Yes," said he, rather dazedly. "Frederic."

"I am very, very fond of your son, James," she said. "How proud you must be to have such a son."

He eyed her narrowly. How much of the horrid story did she know? How much of it had John Desmond told to his wife?

"I am surprised at your liking him, Yvonne. He is what I'd call a difficult young man."

"I haven't found him difficult."

"Morbid and unresponsive."

"Not by nature, however. There is a joyousness, a light-heartedness in his character that has never got beyond the surface until now, James."

"Until now?"

"Yes. And you talk of sending him away. Why?"

"He has wanted to go abroad for years. This is a convenient time for him to go."

"But I am quite sure he will not care to go at present—not for awhile, at least."

"And why not, may I ask?"

"Because he is in love."

"In love!" he exclaimed, his jaw setting hard.

"He is in love with Lydia."

"I'll put a stop to that!"

"And why, may I ask?" she mimicked.

"Because—why—" he burst out, but instantly collected himself. "He is not in a position to marry, that's all."

"Financially?"

He swallowed hard. "Yes."

"Poof!" she exclaimed, dismissing the obstacle with a wave of her slim hand. "A cigarette, please. There is another reason why he shouldn't go—an excellent one."

"The reason you've already given is sufficient to convince me that he ought was looking at him in a curiously penetrating way. There was a mocking smile on her lips at the time. He saw it fade away, even as the crowd came between. He knew that the smile had not been intended for him, but for some of the eager cavaliers who surrounded her, and yet there was something singularly direct in the look she gave him.

That single glance in the duke's house proved to be a fateful one for both. They were married inside of a month. The virile, confident American had conquered where countless suppliants of a more or less noble character had gone down to defeat.

He asked but one question of her, she asked none of him. The fact that she was the intimate friend and associate of the woman in whose home he met her, was sufficient proof of her standing in society, although that would have counted for little so far as Brood was concerned.

She was the daughter of a baron; she had spent much of her life in Paris, coming from St. Petersburg when a young girl; and she was an orphan with an independent fortune of her own. Such common details as these came to Brood in the natural way and were not derived from any effort on his part to secure information concerning Mademoiselle Lestrang.

Like the burnt child, he asked a question which harked back to an unforgotten pain.

"Have you ever loved a man deeply, devotedly, Yvonne—so deeply that there is pain in the thought of him?"

She replied without hesitation. "There is no such man, James. You may be sure of that."

"I am confident that I can hold your love against the future, but no man is vital enough to compete with the past. Love doesn't really die, you know. If a man cannot hold a woman's love against all newcomers, he deserves to lose it. It doesn't follow, however, that he can protect himself against the man who appears out of the past and claims his own."

"You speak as though the past had played you an evil trick," she said.

He did not mince words. "Years ago a man came out of the past and took from me the woman I loved and cherished."

"Your—your wife?" she asked in a voice suddenly lowered.

"Yes," he said quietly.

She was silent for a long time. "I wonder at your courage in taking the risk again," she said.

to go at once. What is the other one, pray?"

She lighted the cigarette from the match he held. "What would you say if I were to tell you that I object to his going away—at present?"

"I should ask the very obvious question."

"Because I like him, I want him to like me, and I shall be very lonely without him," she answered calmly.

"You?" he cried. "Why, you've never known anything but—"

"One can be lonely even in the heart of a throng," she said cryptically. "No, James, I will not have him sent away."

He was silent for a moment. "We will leave it to Frederic," he said.

Her face brightened. "That is all I ask. He will stay."

There was another pause. "You two have become very good friends, Yvonne."

"He is devoted to me."

She blew cigarette smoke in his face and laughed. There was a knock at the door.

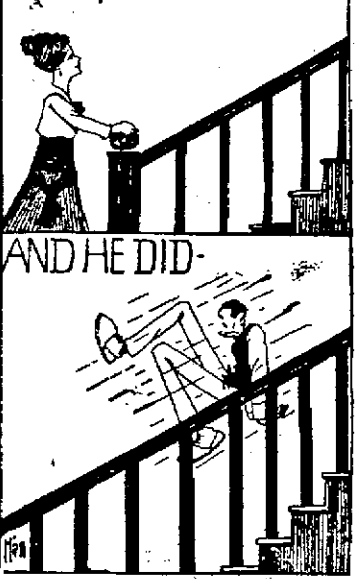

"Come in," she called.

Frederic entered.

CHAPTER VI.

The Spreading Glow.

Yvonne Lestrang, in a way, had been born to purple and fine linen. She had never known deprivation of any description. Neither money, position or love had been denied her during the few years in which her charm and beauty had flashed across the great European capitals, penetrating even to the recesses of royal courts. It is doubtful if James Brood knew very much concerning her family when he proposed marriage to her, but it is certain that he did not care. He first saw her at the home of a British nobleman, but did not meet her. Something in the vivid, brilliant face of the woman made a deep and lasting impression on him. There was an instant when their eyes met through an opening in the throng which separated them. He was not only conscious of the fact that he was staring at her, but that she

Dinner Stories

A Canadian teacher recently gave his pupils a lecture on patriotism. He pointed out the motives which moved Canadians to leave their homes and fight for Great Britain.

The teacher noticed that one boy did not pay attention to the instruction, and as a test question he asked him:

"What motives took the Canadians to the war?"

The boy was puzzled for a moment, then, remembering the public "send-off" to the local regiment at the railway station, he replied:

"Locomotives, sir."

A farmer, in looking his car over one day, trusted a lighted match into the gasoline tank. The ensuing explosion laid him up for several weeks. On the first day that he was able to be about he visited the storekeeper who had sold him the stuff and demanded compensation.

"Why should I pay you anything?" asked the merchant hotly. "It was your own fault. You knew it was gasoline."

"That's all right, but this accident was caused by defective gasoline."

"Yes, sir, I've been sticking matches into gasoline that I've bought here before, and this was the first lot that ever acted that way."

"And so, you are fully determined," he persisted, "that you cannot marry me?"

"Yes," she replied, gently but firmly. "I must still say no. I do not care enough for you for that."

"All right," said he, with a well-simulated sigh of relief, as he turned to the door to go. "I was afraid that you had been taking our little flirtation seriously, and I meant to do the right thing at any cost, but this let's me out."

SICK SKINS MADE WELL BY RESINOL

No matter how long you have been tortured and disfigured by itching, burning, raw or scaly skin humors, just put a little of that soothing, antiseptic Resinol Ointment on the sores. The itching usually stops right there!

Healing begins that very minute, and in almost every case your skin gets well so quickly you feel ashamed of the money you threw away on tedious, useless treatments.

Resinol Ointment is not an experiment. It is a doctor's prescription which proved so wonderfully successful for skin troubles that it has been used by other doctors all over the country for twenty years. No other treatment for the skin now before the public can show such a record of professional approval. Every drugist sells Resinol Ointment (50c. and $1.00), and Resinol Soap (25c.). They do wonders for pimples, blackheads, dandruff and chafings, and are a comfort to skin-tortured babies.

Buddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician:

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, you will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter that one's system collects.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women, as well as men, take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets now and then just to keep in the pink of condition.

DENIES ENGAGEMENT TO AMERICAN GIRL

Seton Robert Beresford.

Rumors to the effect that Miss Katherine A. Britton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Britton of Washington, who has gone to England in company with Miss Nona McAdoo to act as war nurse, has become engaged to Hon. Seton Robert Beresford, brother of Lord Decies, have reached this country through private correspondence. From London comes the report that Beresford has denied that he is engaged to Miss Britton. They have been acquainted but a few weeks.

"The Girl of the Golden West" is the second in the series of releases made by Jesse L. Lasky in association with David Belasco. This production is of special interest, not only because of the world-wide fame of the dramatic production—which has enjoyed the distinction of being turned into grand opera libretto for one of the most noted works of the stage—but because of its essential and special photodramatic values. "The Girl of the Golden West" has the same rare excellence of qualities for the camera as for the stage, and the more complete exposition possible in photodramatic form makes the story even more picturesque and thrilling. The story of the "Girl of the Golden West" who belonged to the race of the "Forty-niners" and kept a saloon in a mining camp of the Sierra, is a character known to all people who in any degree follow critical events. The story of her defiance of the gambler sheriff and her love for the city-bred "road-agent" is almost a household name. This Belasco masterpiece includes Mabel Van Buren in the title role; Theodore Roberts as the sheriff, Jack Rance; House of Representatives, the road agent; and other well-known scenic artists in the various important roles. "The Girl of the Golden West" has been produced for the screen by Cecil B. De Mille, and is the result of some months of study in California, near the actual scenes of the story. It will be shown at the Apollo for two shows tonight.

Famous Literary Musical Masterpiece in Film Play. On Tuesday the Apollo presents the first part of the "Mignon," which has been filmed amidst some of the most beautiful and romantic scenery in the world. "Mignon" is a star film of the highest caliber, demanding a list of exceptional gifts and abilities for the interpretation of the grandly conceived character which the part of the heroine manifests. A young girl, almost to the manner born, who attaches herself to a handsome young nobleman, with a haughty and jealous fiancée of his own class, is a subject for operatic, dramatic, and literary treatment around which a wealth of picturesque incidents can be placed, with opportunities for scenic effects and contrasts in character studies which are obvious to anybody with the instinct of dramatic construction. Around this central theme Goethe wrote an immortal and poignant story, and Ambrose Thomas, just some of his most beautiful musical writings, prime donne of the highest acting and vocal abilities interpreted the role of "Mignon" in the chief opera houses of the world during the past half century, so that when the producers came to make the picture, they were shouldering a burden of some weight—the weight of a century old reputation which had attached itself to Goethe's story. They had to make a picture which should satisfy sincere lovers of the highest form of literary and musical art. They succeeded in doing so. Special music and an augmented orchestra will add further beauty to this performance.

EDGERTON MAROONS DEFEAT FAST STOUTINGTON MANDTS.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Edgerton, March 13.—The Maroons again found the Mandts out-picking in the local basketball game, this time Saturday night, running up a 30 to 7 score against the visitors during the first half in a comparatively easy fashion. During the greater part of the contest the play was in the Maroons' territory. During the greater part of the final session the maroons played a fast game and kept the ball in their territory and showed great ability in shooting baskets. The final score was 62 to 15. The first half was interscholastic and the last half intercollegiate. Prof. F. O. Holt refereed the game, and the line-up was as follows: Edgerton—C. McIntosh, C. Ogden, R. H. Sutton, R. P. Carlson, R. P. McIntosh, Jr., Hitchcock, sub-toughout, Jerdee, C. McMullen, R. Ed. Olson, R. A. Jones, R. P. Dohme, Jr. H. H. Haver, sub. The six reels of motion pictures of the great war in Europe, showing the German side of the mighty struggle, taken by permission of the German general staff, will be seen at the Myers Theatre tonight and tomorrow matinee. In addition to the pictures, Edmund von Rakowski will lecture and explain fully the various scenes. Baron von Rakowski is a member of the 4th Elite regiment of Berlin and one of the Kaiser's own guards. Some of the pictures show and tell more clearly than words the great devastation being wrought in many beautiful cities and villages. Americans have read of the powerful German guns. One of the features of the pictures exhibit these guns, showing them throwing the big shells and the destruction done by a single shell. The pictures also include scenes of the eastern theatre of war, which are the first and only ever shown in this country.

CLINTON

Clinton, March 13.—Walter Bierer of Rockford, formerly of Clinton, was here Thursday calling on old friends and neighbors. He reports Mrs. Bierer and their son in excellent health.

Mrs. S. A. Wilson and Mrs. L. L. Olds of Madison came down to attend the funeral of Mrs. F. R. Helmer. It is reported that Charles Whitlock who sold his home last fall and moved to Sharon a few days ago, has decided to return to Clinton and has purchased the house recently occupied by George Lillie, on West Milwaukee street. It is a peculiar coincidence that Mrs. Whitlock's mother owned the place several years ago, and made her home there.

Mrs. Jennie Mayberry passed to the great beyond Friday morning. She has been ailing all winter. Two daughters are left, they being Mesdames L. P. Edley and George Hunt. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made. George Lillie went to Sharon Thursday to see his son and family for a few days.

The small son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Miner, west of town, is very ill. Glenn R. Crabtree was called to his old home at Carey, Illinois, Thursday on account of the serious illness of his brother, who is suffering from pneumonia.

H. A. Rowe was in Beloit Thursday. Mrs. William Wells, who has been a long and patient sufferer, died Thursday night. Funeral Saturday at 2 o'clock at the house, Rev. A. W. Triggs officiating. Mrs. H. A. Rowe and children went to Lake Geneva yesterday to visit relatives over Sunday. A. J. Boden, W. H. Cheesman and R. C. Stewart went to Janesville last night. THIRTY BELOIT MEN GET FIRST PAPERS

Foreign-born Residents of Line City in Rush to Secure Naturalization Applications.

There was a rush of business in the clerk of the circuit court's office the latter part of last week when thirty foreign-born residents of Beloit appeared to make application for citizenship. Under the recent ruling of the state supreme court in which it declared the naturalization law unconstitutional, these men will be entitled to vote at the April election providing they have been residents of the state for one year. The demand for first papers was so unexpected that the supply of blanks in the clerk's office was exhausted and a rush order was sent to Washington for more. A number of applicants were turned away on Saturday although word had been sent to Beloit that it was useless to make application until after the first of this week. Eight applicants were registered on Thursday, all of them Lithuanians. There were twelve applicants on Friday, eleven of whom were Italians. The other was a Russian.

QUIZES FOR SERVICE IN U. S. DEPARTMENTS

Government Will Hold Examinations for Good Positions Here in April.

An opportunity for stenographers and typewriters of Janesville and the vicinity to secure good positions with the government will be possible shortly. Examinations will be held at the postoffice building here on April 10. Employees for four branches of the service are needed and successful candidates will be able to begin at salaries ranging from $840 to $1,200 annually. At present vacancies exist in the departmental, field, Panama Canal and Philippine service.

In past years Wisconsin has not been very largely represented in furnishing employees for the service, and the examination is being held for the sole purpose of permitting the state to furnish its quota.

Application should be made to the secretary of the United States Civil Service Board of Examiners at Chicago. Further information will be obtained from Postmaster J. J. Cunningham at the local federal building.

SHERIFF MAKES TRIP TO ARREST FRED BENNETT

Sheriff Del Chamberlain made an automobile trip Sunday afternoon to arrest Fred Bennett and his alleged wife, who was formerly Mabel Griffen, at the home of Bennett's parents, in the town of Fulton. A telephone call was received at the county jail that Bennett was making threats to his parents and in other ways abusing them. When the authorities arrived Bennett had left and he could not be found.

WORLD'S SERIES IN CHICAGO IS 'DREAM' OF WINDY CITY FAN

Cubs do not appear to be Over Strong—Prospects are Bright for the Sox—Whales Expect Pennant.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Chicago, March 13.—Chicago fans will see a part of the world's series next fall, and on that day will be played on the West Side grounds, if you listen to President Thomas of the Cubs. And it may be said with-out fear of successful contradiction, as Senator Morgan was wont to remark, that President Thomas really believes it.

As a matter of fact, the Cubs do look better on paper this year than they did last. Thomas insists they look 75 percent better. Manager Bresnahan, being pessimistic as well as peevish in disposition, admits they look at least 25 percent better.

The Cubs went south for spring training with 31 candidates.

The second base job, which by the way, is where Johnny Evers used to hang out, is the question for Manager Roger. It is a position of sufficient to fill baseball positions. Roger's task would be easy, for Arthur Phelan, who insists he has been out-quoted and out-bid by the Sox, is out for the key stone sack. Opposed to Arthur in the fight for the left field position is Polly McGarry, who in the Cubs got from Louisville in exchange for Claude Derrick. Phelan, as a utility man last year, needs no "We have with us to-night, still before his name. McGarry is a left hander, bat, hit over 300 last year with Louisville, is a 6-footer, and had on the bag attached to him when delivered, F. O. B. to President Thomas, "Is a bear on the base."

Saier for First.

Vic Saier is certain to have the biggest put-out record on the Cubs. He is supposed for first base.

There are two worthies after the short-stop position. They are Bob Fisher and Walter Keating. Bob was among the elite last year, earning in the city series. He was kept out of the local title because Garry Herrmann said he hadn't been signed previous Sept. 1, 1914. Fisher looks good to figure in the fight for the 1915 published Cub line-up.

Keating is a Columbian, and came to Chicago highly recommended by Old Man Box Score.

Six Outfielders.

Manager Bresnahan has six outfielders to pick from. With Frank Schulte practically certain to play right, the passing of Tommy Leach leaves two holes to fill. Fred Wilkes, signed while still playing at Notre Dame, has been a utility outfielder for three years. He is placed to play center. Pete Kinsley, once tried out by the Cubs, later with Birmingham, and now back with the Big Ones, will try for Williams. Jimmy Johnston, formerly with Francisco, and Milo Allison, with Memphis last year, are the other two gardeners.

Thirteen Boxmen.

There are thirteen boxmen on the Cub lists at present. Seven are known. They are Cheney Vaughn, Humphries, Zabel, Pierce, Lavender, and Hasegawa. The other six are new ones. They are: Fred Connell, drafted from Buffalo; Karl Adams, drafted from Indianapolis; Pete Standridge, a Frisco draft; W. E. Schorr, from South; Russell Robbins, a Saginaw draft; and Jesse Buckles, who hails from Medicine Hat.

Besides Bresnahan, who will be a player manager, the Cubs have four catchers, one a recruit—Alex Kluth. The others are Archer, Hargrave, and Early Tyree.

Leine Zimmerman still draws his own salary and his wife's from the Cub treasury. There is no player on the list who is out for Jim's job, he has just sub when Jim sasses the umpire.

Sox are Winners.

"I've got a winner this year," was the comment of Chas. A. Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, as he took the train for the coast in the middle of February, followed by a week later by the host in whitewashed hose. "Friends of the 'Old Roman' one of the most popular man in the national game, hope he is right, but—hoping is the best thing a Sox fan can do and they have been doing it ever since Fielder Jones' hitless wonders brought home the bacon in 1905.

Collins Will Help.

Comiskey has filled a big hole in his infield by the purchase of Eddie Collins from the Athletics. That has been the weakest point in the White Sox lineup since Frank Lebelle, the "bald eagle" ceased cawing there. The Sox last year had magnificent pitching, while there is no better reliever in the American league than Ray Schalk, with Daily looking like a comer. The trouble was that the team would "blow" without provocation and when it blew, it blew the game. Collins is counted on to steady the entire team.

Still more important, however, is Comiskey's shift in managers. Ousting Jim Callahan, a veteran, Clarence Rowland, direct point in the Sox, will pilot the Sox. Rowland, who has speed. Callahan never had much speed himself and could get little of it out of his combination of vets and recruits. Rowland is cutting out the vets, no matter how close they are to Comiskey—witness the passing of Billy Sullivan and Ping Bodie. He is to have his head in the new job and probably will do more to make or break the Sox than Eddie Collins.

Many Slabmen.

Rowland has a wealth of material and a first class pitching staff. To start with in Scott, Clotte, Benz, Tex Russell, and Faber. Ed Walsh may be back. He thinks he will be in by the time the Sox start. If he is, it's 20 percent for Rowland's chances. At all events, the manager should be able to pick up good pitchers out of Wolfgang, Lathrop, Jasper, Scroggins and Klepper, most of whom were the White Sox last year. To help Schalk, and Daly behind the bat, Rowland may keep Kuhn and Mayer, although neither has shown much of late.

CARDINALS WIN TITLE OVER U. W. RESERVES

LAKOTAS WIN CHAMPIONSHIP OF SOUTHERN WISCONSIN THROUGH VICTORY.

SCORE WAS 24 TO 18

Game Was Hardest Fought and Played of Matches Held This Year—Play Fond du Lac on the 20th.

The Lakota Cardinals won the championship of southern Wisconsin Saturday night, when they out-fought the Wisconsin Reserves in a stiff basketball duel at the Auditorium by the score of 24 to 18. It was the hardest fought game played here this season, both sides being evenly matched and fighting to the end for the victory that would give them a chance at the state title.

At the end of the first half the score was a tie, each team registering ten points, after an exhibition that made a boxing contest look tame, a relay race look slow, and a football game wild. The pace that the two teams went through was most grueling, and none of the players were gentle in their guarding or took pains for fear of a rival's life or limb. They were both in the game to win.

In the opening of the second half the Lakotas took a spurt and scored ten points for a lead which they kept during the half until the last ten minutes of play, when the Reserves retaken through the work of Lange, varsity center.

Edler played the sensational light for the Cardinals, and his guarding was a revelation. He was a stone wall in defense, the keystone to the teamwork and scored two goals at crucial points. The Reserves tried to break down his defense, but Edler proved able to guard both men when the time demanded and in dribbling the ball was like a triple eagle.

Harringtons defeated the strong Menasha team, who walloped the soldier five times. The Cardinals will be ready for them if they come.

If a victory follows this game the Red Wing, Minnesota team, who lay claim to the title of the northwest, will be the team to watch.

Benway was badly injured in the last half when Dalton "fopped" on him and driving his knees into the Madison boys' chest. He also received a bad blow on the nose, causing the blood to flow freely, during the last few minutes of play.

Lange attempted the holding game against Edler and got sent through the air into the wall, and thereafter he was more careful where he put his fists and hands. At one time there were four players on the floor in a football scrimmage play, and both Atwood and Curtin came near getting injured in the front rank of the goals at the west end. During the game there were no hard feelings shown by any of the players, but all the while their hearts, and as a result, a great deal of intense work done.

Falter showed excellent form in the last half and proved a hard man for the Reserves guards to block, for he kept his feet under their grasp with ease and quickness.

Chandler may be obtained to play a forward against the Fond du Lac team next Saturday, which would shift Dalton to a guard.

MORRIS MILLER

The word "fan" was coined in 1833. While managing the St. Louis Browns a particularly talkative person came around daily and would rant on players, their ability and baseball in general. One day when he went out Charles Comiskey was asked what he would call a fellow like that. Comiskey suggested that he was a baseball fanatic. A newspaper man present said that was too the word "fan" and he printed it, and the other newspapers took it up, referring to anyone too interested in baseball as a fan. Hence the word.

Ivy Wingo, a southern-born and raised, looks as little like a southerner as anyone could imagine, with his red hair, his freckles, and his blue eyes. Yet Fritz von Koln, who has thoroughly German name, looks the traditional southerner in every detail—olive skin, waving black hair, flashing black teeth, and a drawl that's his real baptismal first name, and that it wasn't given him because he clings and twines around a fat pay check—nothing of the kind!

Danny Moeller, Washington's right-felder, throws his arm out on an average of about once a month. He was badly injured last month, according to the western, the Highlanders' right-hander, who spent two seasons with the Athletics. "It is Eddie's right shoulder, not his left one," says the blunk regularly. Why, just smack Eddie hard on the shoulder and out it goes. But it pulls right back into place and never pains him over a minute," so says the well-groomed Brown.

If the Russians don't stop killing or capturing all the Turkish regiments, there will be a fearful shortage of wrestlers in this country next season.

Wee Tommy Leach is one of the best bunters in baseball, but he's not neglecting to practice the art of laying 'em down. At the Cincinnati Reds camp, Alexandria, La., Leach always bunts the first ball when it's hit up at the plate in batting practice. Herzog's men are following Leach's example and rapidly are improving as bunters.

International sporting events will be rare affairs this spring, if they occur at all, owing to the big war doing across the Atlantic. Here are some of the important international sports affairs that have already been called off.

Jack Coombs is fitting in nicely as the strategist of the Brooklyn Nationals. Just now he is coaching the young pitchers and giving the catchers some spy-proof signals.

Women golfers are demanding equal rights on the links. They say it's just horrid mean of the masculine golfers to assume a lordly attitude on the golf course, and that hereafter, by gosh, they're going to get their rights or—well, the alternative hasn't been decided upon yet, but it is something horrible. The ladies have been busting into newspapers and magazine pages quite recently of late with long walls concerning the injustice to which they must submit. The men are too conceited—that's where the trouble lies, writes one feminine golfer, matter, they think that all the golfing skill in the world is theirs. They think when ever they are on the course they dominate it. If women are playing ahead of them they insist upon playing through. They won't wait as they would if other men were playing ahead of them.

Griffith's edict of a $25 fine for any player who is caught smoking a cigarette is having the desired effect. Even Chick Gandil, who has been an incessant cigarette smoker, has cut it out, and it is figured that it will make a big difference in his playing the coming season. Griffith had his players up for a heart-to-heart talk recently, during which he made it plain that the cigarette was absolutely barred. Morgan, Shanks and Gandil, all of whom smoked last season, have, of course, acceded to the demand, and Griffith figures it will make a big difference in their showing.

Having heard the walls of eight National league managers as to how the twenty-one-player rule has ruined their clubs, we reach the conclusion that the fight managers have no monopoly on the advance alibi.

Joe Benz doesn't expect to live long enough to have another year as eventful as he had in 1914. Here are some of the things that 1914 let happen to the "butcher" boy. Made "round the world trip with the White Sox and Giants" got married on his return; made training trip that took him out to California; pitched one no-hit game for the White Sox and just missed duplicating the feat again by an eyelash; passed successfully through an attack of typhoid fever; gave him gray hair; underwent operation on his throat that kept him on table three hours.

Of course, the white man turned an awful trick on the Indians when he bought Manhattan island off the Red Indians for $25—but there are those who think that the $6,000 a year contract for which Jim Thorpe stuck John McGraw comes pretty near to evening up the ledger.

Ivan Olson is to be the regular second baseman for the Cincinnati Reds this season. That's the announcement of Charlie Herzog, boss of the Reds, after watching Olson work out for the past ten days at the Cincinnati training camp in Alexandria, La. Herzog says Olson is fielding around the second base is great and also states he considers Olson one of the brainiest and fastest of infielders.

The German athletic commission still insists that the Olympic games will be held in Berlin as per schedule. All contestants will be required to enter in the main field, ducking the forty-two centimeter shells.

JANESVILLE PLAYS BELOIT THIS WEEK; ELIMINATION GAME

Contest Will Be Played at Either Rockford or Milton on Saturday Night.

Janesville must play Beloit before next Sunday in their first elimination contest prior to entering the state meet at Appleton. This news was sent to Coach Curtis early yesterday through a telegram from Lawrence authorities. The college officials have recommended three floors to play the game on, the Rockford, Illinois, and Evansville high school and Milton College floors being named. Curtis objects to playing the game at Evansville, while Beloit will probably object to the Milton floor, after Janesville has played three games this week on that space.

Since the game must be played before next Sunday, it is likely that Curtis will attempt to arrange the contest for Saturday, this late date coming as the result of a hard schedule that Janesville must face at Milton.

But Beloit is not all. If Janesville wins from Beloit, the telegram says, they must then play Evansville before Sunday, the 27th. Evidently the winner of these games will go to Appleton with another team from the eastern part of this section, probably Burlington or Racine.

Janesville has never before entered into two weeks of such strenuous activity on the basketball floor prior to a state tourney. At least four games in four days faces the players. Where ever the game is played Janesville can be depended upon to send a carload of voters to aid in getting Beloit's "goal." Beloit's terrible slump within the past three weeks has given Captain Stickney renewed confidence. A victory now seems almost certain.

Beloit has a team of beef, where Janesville has no beef. The way Beloit played against Elgin two weeks ago would discourage any coach, and Rawson has not got over it yet. Janesville believes she can win and is laying all her hopes for a victory on Dearborn and Stewart, the two faithful guards who have played so well together this year. Stickney, Weirick

The Sales Possibilities of Gazette Want Ads Are Many

Don't say that what you have to sell can not be sold through the little, low priced want ads of the Gazette.

The saying that nothing is impossible in this day and age is most strongly illustrated by the results obtained through the advertisements on this page.

A typewriter is sold by a Janesville business man in Sullivan, Wis.; bird houses are sold by a boy; a better home is secured by a family after a fruitless walk over the entire city; a farm is sold to a distant buyer; a house is rented after a sign had failed to produce even an inquiry; etc., etc.

There Is No Limit to the Possibilities of This Page.

The rate is a cent a word per insertion with a 25% discount for cash. Minimum price 25c.

Whitewater News

Whitewater, March 15.—The girls' organization and the ladies of the normal faculty entertained the city federation in honor of Mrs. D. O. Kinsman, president of the state federation, Saturday afternoon, in normal assembly room. Girls of the Treble Clef club sang a selection; Miss Lucy Baker spoke of the inspiration and benefit Mrs. Kinsman had been to the faculty and the girls of the school. Mrs. Kinsman responded and gave an outline of the work that she hoped the federation would accomplish. Mrs. Margaret Godfrey then introduced Mrs. Lois Kimball Mathews, dean of the women's hall, Madison university, who gave a very interesting talk to the normal girls and the federation. After singing the federation hymn they adjourned to the gymnasium, where light refreshments were served.
